

About our high school ethics club

Our high school ethics club is for students who love to have robust discussions about ethical dilemmas, current issues and challenging ideas. All students are welcome in our high school ethics club, whether they have participated in ethics lessons in primary school or not.

In our ethics club, students work collaboratively, actively listening to one another and engaging in respectful discussions. Contemporary issues, case studies and scenarios form the basis of thinking and discussions on ethical issues in our new high school curriculum. Students engage with questions such as: Pets, pests and farm animals – should we treat them differently from each other and why? And Are people's true characters revealed in the choices they make under pressure?

An ethics club for Year 7 and 8 students explores ethical dilemmas that can loom large in the adolescent years by:

- supporting students to develop skills in critical thinking, respectful discussion and ethical reasoning, skills which are transferable to the key learning areas of the curriculum
- assisting with development of interpersonal and decision-making skills
- supporting students in making the significant transition from primary to high school.

About the high school ethics club curriculum

Our new high school ethics curriculum is written by experts and is based on the traditions of philosophical inquiry combined with the findings of cognitive psychology and pedagogical research. We use a community of inquiry learning model supported by teacher-led questioning. This student-centred approach to learning supports students to be curious and discover concepts for themselves, by collaborating with their peers in a safe environment. Lessons are facilitated by volunteer ethics teachers who are trained and supported by Primary Ethics.

The curriculum is reviewed by the NSW Department of Education for age appropriateness. The topics invite students to examine what we ought to do, how we ought to live, the kind of society we should have and what kind of person each of us should strive to be.

The ethical dilemmas presented in the club are designed to be challenging, providing students with the opportunity to practise and then apply their collaborative inquiry and critical thinking skills. The overall aim of the high school ethics club is for students to develop both the capability and the willingness to discuss ethical issues with those around them in a well-reasoned and respectful way.

The high school ethics club is provided by Primary Ethics, an independent, not-for-profit organisation and the single approved provider of Special Education in Ethics (SEE) to NSW Department of Education schools. We recruit, train and support volunteers to deliver ethics lessons using a facilitated community of inquiry learning model. Our high school volunteers are parents, family and members of the broader school community. We are always interested in receiving applications from additional new volunteers.
